The Importance of English in Engineering for Professional Communication: A Study in the Nepalese Context

1.1 Communication and Profession

Communication has a very important place in any profession. It is almost impossible to handle any profession in the world in the absence of communication. In all kinds of professions, communication plays a vital role. Success depends greatly on the communication skills of the professionals. Konar [8], emphasizes that in today's competitive and globalized world, communication has become an essential tool for everyone, be they students, academics or professionals. For the professionals, effective communicative skill is of prime importance. (6) It is the basic requirement for them. In the words of Konar [8],

"For technocrats and professionals, (7) it becomes all the more necessary to acquire good communication skills as they have to communicate effectively with all (8) their business and professional colleagues." The professionals spend a great deal of (9) their time communicating with their partners, employees, clients and colleagues. In a professional world, what professionals do most of the time is to communicate [Kumar & Lata, 9]. (10) It is the communication that determines the success and failure of any profession. Those companies and organizations which have the employees possessing good communication skills can perform better. In the absence of proper kind of communication skills in the professionals, (11) it is difficult for any organization to survive
